3. The National Interdepartmental Seminar

The nineteenth Session began on 14 June and will end on 9 July. CIA met its full quota of eight students. DOD, USIA, and AEC all exceeded their quotas, but State provided only 7 students against a quota of 16. None of State's representatives are of ambassadorial rank. By contrast, DOD has 2 general officers who are participants -- Maj. Gen. Dwight Johnson (MAAG China) and Maj. Gen. Harvey J. Jablousky (ARMISH MAAG Iran). USIA has an Associate Director, Mr. Howard B. Woods, GS-18. AID's new Director for Venezuela, Mr. Charles Fossum, is also a participant.

4. DIS Advanced Intelligence Course

On 4 June the Defense Intelligence School completed the first running of its new 14-week Advanced Intelligence Course. DIS plans to give the course twice a year and to make space available in each running for 3 participants from CIA. Two CIA employees were among the 19 students who attended the first running. They were [REDACTED], OCR. The course is of value to CIA personnel who have a need for a detailed orientation into the mission, organization, methods of operations, and management of all DOD intelligence organizations.

Relatively little time was devoted to CIA because of a deliberate decision by DIS to focus on DOD intelligence organizations; however, student critiques stressed the need for considerably more coverage on CIA because of the close working relationships between DOD units and CIA. A summary impression -- as provided by unconscious references to CIA activities and services -- was obtained of CIA's stature among DOD personnel. CIA is represented as being a highly competent organization, composed of professionals, who perform their work expeditiously. When lecturers were speaking specifically of CIA a similar impression was given, although from time to time there were references to occasional difficulties in coordinating clandestine operations in the field, usually followed by the statement that this difficulty reflected personality problems (either on the CIA side, the DOD side, or both) and that such difficulties were the exception rather than the rule. You may be interested to know [REDACTED] the course chief, reported that [REDACTED] was the outstanding student in the course, although the students were not formally rated.

5. Orientation for Overseas

The Orientation for Overseas for employees and spouses preparing for their first overseas tour is now a going concern. Lasting two days, it is a merger of the Dependents Briefing and the discontinued Americans Abroad Orientation (AAO). It has revitalized the former, which had not been requested since August 1964, and has salvaged the behavioral themes of the AAO. The new program thus has three elements: (1) briefings on security, cover, legal, and medical considerations; (2) lectures on personal conduct in a foreign society; and (3) a panel discussion for women--wives and feminine employees. A total of 168, including 64 wives, have attended the five runnings. Participant response has been excellent.

6. Management Training

A class of 20 students attended a Management Course at [REDACTED] from 7 to 11 June. The students ranged from GS-11 to 14; included among them were 2 students with PhD degrees, 5 with Masters and 10 with Bachelors. Three
